

Tunisia to host Arab Innovative Education Forum

“Microsoft” company has picked Tunisia to host works of the Arab Innovative Education Forum due next October 4-7, under the supervision of the Education Ministry.

The forum seeks to honor best integrated information and communication technology projects in the education field.

It relies, to this effect, on two aspects: innovative teachers and innovative schools.

The event will be attended by teachers and officials from innovative schools as well as representatives of schools, in addition to ICT experts from 9 countries: Tunisia, Lebanon, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, UAE, Qatar, Bahrain and Sultanate of Oman.

The Tunis meeting represents the final stage that precedes the World Innovative Education Forum scheduled for next October 26-30 in Cape Town, South Africa.

Two Tunisian innovative schools have been selected to participate in the Arab forum before taking part in the world forum in South Africa.
